STAT

Dear General Scowcroft:

We are honored and grateful that you have accepted [redacted] invitation to talk to our Seminar on Intelligence and National Security Policy which will meet on Monday, 3 December 1984, from 5:00 to 7:30 p.m. This will be a rerun of the Seminar you spoke to in June and will again include about a dozen CIA Senior Intelligence Service Officers, mainly those who were unable to attend the earlier sessions.

STAT

Your remarks and responses to questions in June were the highlight of that running of the course and I am delighted to learn that you will be able to participate on 3 December, despite your extremely busy schedule. The Agency deeply appreciates your cooperation. Again, I am enclosing, for your information, the slightly revised reading list which has been sent to each attendee.

The arrangements and format of your session will be much as they were in June. The three sessions preceding yours will have covered the organization and operation of the National Security Council system during the Nixon Administration as well as case studies of the Arab-Israeli War, SALT I negotiations, the Shootdown of the EC-121, and a history of the National Security Council Intelligence Committee. We plan to devote the entire last session of the seminar to your presentation and a general discussion.

To recap my earlier letter to you, we would hope that you would, in your remarks, cover your impressions of how well--or poorly--the Intelligence Community served the policymakers while you were in the White House. We hope you will also provide the present and future leaders of the CIA production components with any words of wisdom you may wish to impart.

To allow enough time, you should again plan to be at the CIA Headquarters Building in Langley, Virginia by 4:30. You should enter the Main Gate on Route 123 and park at the visitors' parking lot. A member of our staff will meet you in the Main Reception Area and take you to the Seminar room.

Ltr. to Lieutenant General Brent Scowcroft

If you should have any further questions, feel free to call [redacted] Thank you again for participating.
